Dear Collectors and Friends of the Arts:

Here in the Rockies the snow has begun to fly! The higher peaks are covered in glistening white and we can't wait for the next storm to come our way.

We're eagerly anticipating a major Winter of skiing, fine dining, and above all, art collecting. In the beautiful Rockies we call home, the spectacular views have been well captured by several of our best artists who have spent hours out in the cold getting just the right color and composition to capture a major memory for your home. What makes some of these lovely artworks even better is that snow and blue skies are all around. This makes for a very colorful contrast of white snow against a brilliant blue sky, all on one canvas.

You will be delighted to see these fabulous new works. Also, I have pulled out some very special pieces from my archives, painted by some of Russia's finest painters. These are master painters who have had great success in every art market in the world. Look for magnificent blends of color, immediacy of brush stroke, and a very pleasing composition. I am bringing in three very collectable new artists for the winter as well as everyone's favorite Cowboy artist Chance Hays. He will be here painting in the gallery each week and has had fabulous success in his first season with us. He is a fine artist and a great personality, so be sure to come in and meet him.

I'm looking forward to personally visiting with each of you, please stop by my flagship gallery in Vail and have a smooth cup of tea or coffee with me and we'll catch up together!

Sincerely,
Jim
