Legacy of the RUSSIAN MASTERS

July 29 – August 1, 2010

A story that began centuries ago with Russian Czar Peter The Great continues as renowned Hollywood writer/director and painter George Gallo and nationally recognized American painter Don Sahli explore the three hundred year old connection between the Legacy of the Great Russian Masters and today's resurgent American Representational and Impressionist art movement.

Gallo and Sahli are honored to support the Vilar Performing Arts Center and the 23rd Annual Beaver Creek Art Festival with four days of painting and special events surrounding a benefit screening of Gallo's critically acclaimed movie, Local Color, an inspired story of a young painter with his Russian master mentor. From 1982-1985, Don Sahli had a comparable experience as the last apprentice to Sergei Bongart, the great Russian virtuoso painter. Gallo and Sahli will spend the week painting outdoor locations around Vail and Beaver Creek, capturing local scenes on canvas. To view these works, visit Vail Fine Art on Thursday, July 29 and Beaver Creek Fine Art, Friday, July 30. Join us for the following events.

Film students, teachers and other interested ticketholders are invited to engage in a lively discussion of great value for anyone who has dreamed of working in the Hollywood machine.

INTRODUCTION OF LOCAL COLOR BY GEORGE GALLO 7:00 pm

Moviegoers will also be treated to a special video short: Legacy of the Russian Masters. Gallo and Sahli will then share more with the audience on their remarkably similar paths as students of two great Russian artists, George Cherepov and Sergei Bongart, along with the importance of representational art in the world today.

THE OSPREY LEGACY OF THE RUSSIAN MASTERS BACKSTAGE RECEPTION & PREMIER EXHIBITION 9:00 pm

Following the screening of Local Color, Jim Tylich will unveil a collection of large Russian masterworks backstage at the Vilar Performing Arts Center. Many of these major Soviet Era and contemporary masterpieces, previously displayed only in museums, have never been seen outside of Russia. Tylich will share a comprehensive overview on the skill, schooling and distinct technique of these Russian masters that has so impacted today's art world. Dear Clients and Friends of the Arts:

Kind greetings to each of you and a heartfelt thank you! With your wonderful support we are celebrating 21 years in the fine art business. How the time passes! It has been great and I look forward to the future with much anticipation.

This summer again holds many interesting surprises for art aficionados. First comes the very enjoyable and exciting 23rd Annual Beaver Creek Art Festival. This takes place on the weekend of July 31, 2010. Enjoy the work of over 150 skilled artists as they personally display their works and show you how they paint and explain their motivation for each artwork. This is a truly fabulous occasion and allows you to develop a real bond with the artist you like the best.

An integral part of this special weekend will be the screening of the award-winning film "Local Color" presented by Hollywood's celebrated international movie director and artist George Gallo. He will be accompanied on stage by well known American artist Don Sahli. The two men have much in common as you will see.

Be sure to see the attached schedule of events. On Saturday night after the movie screening, a VIP event will be held in the large backstage area of the beautiful Vilar Center. There, you can meet George and Don in person, take photos, and ask questions about their amazing artworks. Then I will personally display and explain to you a number of stunning Russian masterpieces, many of which have never before been seen outside of Soviet Russia. This lecture in art and history will include delicious hors d'œuvres, champagne, and personal stories regarding how I found the art in the huge landmass that is today called the Russian Federation. Enjoy appetizers by Chef Michael Wilganowski of The Osprey at Beaver Creek, and desserts by the Columbine Bakery.

In conclusion, please join us for our July 4th weekend Grand Re-opening of our original Vail Fine Art Gallery in the Solaris Building in Vail.

Sincerely,

Jim Tylich
